I feel much regret to say that I am quite unable to buy the vault in which my infant lies. my circumstances have much changed since it was intimated thier with your kind permission. it is a mortification to acknowledge such a state of affairs but such it is. I have a hope that my situation may through finds change in this one particular. I will be at Bringhurst the coming week.

My dear Sir

Miss Spurrier proved so intolerably troublesome by letters upon letters: and after all, that I was obliged to dismiss her case from my thoughts, I found I could do nothing for her. I ceased to read her letters or have anything to do with her case: discovering moreover that she had put her business into the hands of a young lawyer who seemed disposed to do all he could for her and who had time to attend to her. Of Mr Trimble being in fair, I had not heard before your letter arrived. Mr Trimble is generally regarded as a worthy man: Miss Spurrier chose his guardianship as he was a friend of her Brother. I acted at her own special request and prevailed on Mr Trimble to take charge of her: She soon had a quarrel with him and when she is now. I really do not know.

Mr John B. Howell is a Merchant here of large wealth and high standing: but whether he would trouble himself with this unfortunate Lady. is very questionable

The Rev Mr Mc Gillon is an amiable well meaning man and would I am sure give no advice, but with the best intentions.

I rather think you have a most troublesome and unfortunate case to deal with in the person of this poor Lady and that the State Hospital would be the most suitable place for her. I believe she is beyond my reach and that your bounty will be as safe, in the hand of the Revd Mr McAllen, as it will ever be.

With great respect.

Your Friend & Obt. Sert.
